THE TRIBUNE A Ride through the Forest-Lake Scenery of Central &. York.

THE BACK WOODS, LONG LAKE, Aug. 15.

re-respondence of The New-York Tribune.

Long Lake is not thirty miles long, as I was emstantly informed. I have been twice the entre length of it, and rowed nearly the whole distance once myself (which you would say would nt incline me to shorten the miles,) and it is petover 18 miles on the most liberal allowance. I wish I could convey to you some idea of the lake scenery of this region. I have seen many othe most beautiful lakes of both hemispheres, and I believe that the wild, untrodden and Al. sine region of Hamilton County furnishes as pantiful sheets of water, encompassed by as gand and lovely and varied seenery as any part | practicability and usefulness, and would not noof the world. Pass down Long Lake, folded in be willing that it should be abolished from the be its massive and forest-covered mountains, bated with islands which in turn are crowned ch lofty pine trees, rising like solid walls of reen far up into the heavens; or float over the der bosom of Rackett Lake, all scolloped up certificates to this effect, which were published in athat I defy you to obtain the faintest idea of the Tenth Annual Report of the Boston Academy of shape or size. I will say nothing of the Forked Luke, those Siamese twins amid the ary influence; another of its good influence on the mountains, though I would like to speak of Rigged Lake, with its inconceivably clear waters and its fairy islands, opening and shuting on you as you pass in bewildering confusion, and each standing on a marble base and crowned with evergreen trees. But I will defer it all to another time, when I shall give the best route for travelers to reach this uninhabited region. Our company consisted of four-Mr. Wyoung Clergyman, whom I persuaded to try bimacking in the forest instead of SaratogaSprings or his health, R-ffe, formerly a merchant in Maiden-lane, but now a thorough backwoodsman. oming down forests and putting up mills, &c. and Ductor T-II, mounted on horseback and capped for rough adventures. We passed one hight morning from the more open settlements, which gradually grew thinner and wilder, until we at length entered the unbroken forest. Novices in forest life, we forgot to take provione for the way; so, after traveling for nearly thirty miles, we found ourselves on the banks of the Boreas River (one of the branches of the Hudson,) weary and hungry, and twelve miles of ferest to the nearest clearing. It was now me n'clock, and we had been in the saddle since tarly in the morning. Our horses needed fond and rest, so did we; but the former was resier obtained for our beasts than for us. Taking of their saddles and tying them head and foot to perent them straying away, we turned them se to browse in the forest. W-d hunted a-und for berries to stay his hunger, while the deeper smoked his pipe and then peeled off the soruce gum by way of stomach stayer. R-ffe sprace gum by way of stomach stayer. And and myself thought of trying the trout; but the sheavily timbered and tangled banks forbade all screes to the stream except by plunging in. Hongrier than I ever remember to have been with the successfully taught in connection with Masie. fore, I floundered through the woods down the Masic. before, I floundered through the woods down the gream, seeking in vain for an opening, until, the introduction of Music into the Common Schools, therefore, had proved highly beneficial.—All this and rieging my line had taken up much All this and rigging my line had taken up much all this and rieging my line had taken up much time, so that I had hooked but one trout when a study of Elecution with Masic. The question was affected our then laid upon the table. nsting place, I found my companions all in the sadde and ready for departure. "What!" said I. " are you going?" "Yes, lat us hurry on.!" "Not I," I replied, "till I devour this trout, for l'a well nigh starved. Come, doctor, strike me afre while I dress this fish." So the doctor kindied a blaze while I cut off the trout's head on a stone and spitted him on a stick, ready for masting. A few minutes in the blaze rendered him fit for my not over nice palate, and I chewed him with a vigor I had never before exhibited, and, when his tail finally disappeared, I heaved a sigh like a rejected lover. I looked around in despair, but there was nothing else entable to be seen; so mounting my steed, we pushed on.

Straggling along in Indian file, we went in a study of the last are from his pile of manuscripts. His researches must have required many years of toil and study. The hope was expressed by seving the principal of the last century, and the representative of Music of that age in New-England. The Convention at its opening this morning, by George Hoop. E-q, of Philadelphia, on the History of Music in New-England. Mr. Hood first gave a concise view of the origin of Metrical Psalmody; and passed with the Reformation into Eagland, giving a brief view of itsecharacter and effects. Then he showed that to be the Music of the Puritan Fathere, illustrating the style by examples. He needed upon a brief, but consecutive history of Music down to the year 1800, giving the principal attempts at improvement—its various changes—ifficulties, &c. and closed with a full and interesting lecture was delivered before the Convention at its opening this morning, by George Land Hero.

Over mountains and across swamps, through a break in the Adinondae Chain, we urged on our jaded animals, with nought but the rush of the wild bird's wing and the scared look of the pheasant as he hurried from our path, to break the me lotony of the forest is a right kingly march. Only think of riding all day through a magnificent colonnade, the columns lifting a hundred feet above your head, and crowned with Corinthian capitals made after a richer model than the acanthus leaf. How the soul awakes in this new existence, and casting off fetter after fetter that solicity has thrown around it, rejoices in broader freedom and leaps with a new excultant feeling. The recovery arch above him does not confine. freedom and leaps with a new exultant feeling.

dom they bring. Towards night we entered a clearing, the five families of which composed the entire town. There was no political strife here, for each man was an officer. Curious to know the politics of this out of the world place, in the centre of New. York, I was told it was Whig. They are nearly thirty miles from a Post Office, and to that Post Office the mail came only once a week, and then on horseback. We staid in a log hut, and next wite, finally arrived a little before noon at Long Lake, and it was literally arriving at the lake. The Convention was organized, not adjourned,

The following question was introduced yesterday by the Standing Committee: Has the introduction

Prof. Mason, in considering this question, gave an interesting account of the introduction of Music into the Public Schools of Boston. It was regarded at first as only an experiment. Many of the teachers were strenuously opposed to the measure. But they soon became thoroughly convinced both of its schools. They speak of it as a belp, instead of a nindrance, affording the children another and strong bond of attachment to their school. So well satisfied have the teachers become in regard to this point that they have all, twenty in number, given their Music. One speaks of its good moral and disciplinvoice. Mr. W. also adverted to the fact that the former Mayor of Boston, though once much opposed to the introduction of Music into the Common Schools, soon became fully satisfied of its import-ance and usefulness; and was ever after its decided

Mr. Joseph Bird, of Watertown, Mass, had no the slightest doubt that the introduction of music into the schools had been highly beneficial, even where it had not been taught as well as it had been in Boston. He would illustrate his point by relatog an anecdote. A young man came to him not ing an anecdote. A young man came to him not long since, and began to find fauit because a certain air that he had learned in childhood had been altered, and its words changed. Why, said he, my father taught me that tune when I used to sit upon his knee; and these were the words—

"My wife will dance and I will sing.

So merrily we'll pass the day," &c.

I know that you will sair he had them and do

So merrity we'll pass the day," &c.

I know they are silly, sir, but I love them, and do now they are still, sr, but I tove them, and co not wish to sing that air to any other words. Now, said Mr. Bird, if the impressions of childhood are so deep and lasting, can there be the slightest doubt as to the usefulness of teaching children to sing such sentiments us the following to the same tune, or any give some information in regard to the introduction of music into the Public Schools of Brooklyn. The experiment was commenced a year ago last September. Two teachers were employed. Many were decidedly opposed to it at first, but in less than a year not one was opposed.

The Board of Managers are now perfectly willing to appropriate a sufficient portion of the Public School Fond to sustain this part of education.

Mr. S. could not refrain from adverting to one of he excellent effects which had already followed this effort. Formerly it was common to see boys running up and down the streets, singing the low and vutgar soons of the day. Now this, to a large

A FLORIDA WEDDING .- We find the following over gress in the boat. So, tying them to the J ____n presiding. trees, and hanging our saddles on the limbs, we crossed over. With all Hamilton County for a stable, our horses possed the first night. But having entered into such a "Treaty of Annexation," the large the lake took up - and Miss - baying entered into as being contrary to the form of the statute in a 100 much time, and so the next morning we con | case made and provided. The said statute provides however, "that if, after the indictment is found, the defendants will renew the alliance under a 'licenze,' the prosecution shall be dismissed."

"Care" in the Pensacola Gazette :

The counsel for the defendants escertaining, upon inquiry, that the proof was such as to render the conviction of his clients inevitable, advised them to avoil teemselves of the above statutory provision. The lady assented readily, but the gentleman defendant rather reluctantly. The next morning the Judge, on taking his sent, discovered upon his table a "license, authorising a celebration of the rites of matrimony between these defendants, with a "postscript." requesting that his Honor would perform the ceremony. Colonel R——y, the Deputy Marshal, was thereupon despatched to inform the defendants that thereupon despatched to reform the detendants that the Judge was ready and willing to unite them in due form in holy wedlock in open Court. Colonel R—y took with him assistant B—I, and proceeded to the house occupied by the defendants. More time was consumed in arresting and bringing the defendants to the hymer-al alter than comported with the patience of the Judge. Colonel R—y apologized to the Court for the delay, by saying: May it please your Honor, on our arrival at the ouse of the defendants, the intended groom took to the swamp, and it was some time before assistant B——I could run him down and catch him. During the pursuit, I was busile engaged in arranging the intended bride in her wedding garments." The excuse being perfectly satisfactory to the Court, the defendants (alias affianced lovers,) were presented to the Court in due form, as supplicants for admission into lawful wedlock, Colonel R——y gallantly and courteously attending the intended bride, and assistant B——I waiting upon the intended groom. When his Honor requested to know "who gives this woman to this man?" Colonel R——y replied, "I do," and with chivalrous grace and dignity deposited her hand into that of the groom. They were then pronounced by the Court to be "man and wife," and most affectionstely saluted each other with a he swamp, and it was some time before as-istan B---r, leading out the bride. Until the day wa far advanced, the music of the fiddle, loud peals of laughter, and the scraping and clattering of heels upon the floor proclaimed the continuation of the marriage feast. Your loving friend,

FICHARD ROE.

I was attended eight-sen months by a regular and shifful Physician, assisted by the advice and coursel of one of our most able and excertenced surseware dibout the least breast whatever. All the various methods of treating cancer were resorted to? for five weeks in succession my breast was burned with counts; these times a day, and for six it was daily syringed with a weak solution of intrie acid, and the cavity or interior a licer was so large that it held over an ounce of the solution. The Ibotico probed the aller and examined the bone, and and the daense was advancing rapidly to the Lungs and if I find and set specify relief by involution or an operation the result would be fatal. I was advanced to have the breast laid open and the bones commined, but finding no relief from what had becarding the covery and considered my case therefore an attack adquired necessary and considered my case therefore and curre by the new of "Sarbay's Canasavaratha," in cases similar to my own, I conclinied to try in few battles, several of which we carried, but from the long, deep seated character of inch week my decided change; contains an operation produced for try decided change; contains since the only probable cure for my case I persevered, until the disease was estirely cared. It is now were classed appearance of a return. Therefore promones myself, with a presence of a return.
